A FOREWORD FROM OUR EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

What a blessing to be writing this note to welcome each of you to the Creative Partnerships Conference (CPC) 2025.

It feels like a milestone that must be acknowledged and celebrated.

Now in its third edition, we are delighted to bring CPC to Glasgow for the first time. This year's programme is grounded in our guiding event principle of adding as much value to you as we possibly can. I hope our passion, care, and commitment to this principle will be felt throughout the day and will stay with you as you go forward and further your creative careers and dreams.

For over a decade, we have worked with a sense of focus and determination to create more opportunities and career advancement avenues for Black creatives in Scotland. We have grown alongside you and have watched talent spring forth year after year, adding to the vibrancy and eclectic mix of arts and culture in our nation.

The vision of Be United stands strong, and as we come together for the Creative Partnerships Conference 2025, we remain united in our commitment to creativity, innovation, and inclusion. Let 2025 be a milestone and a marker for us all. Let us make this year count, and let us continue to create, collaborate, and shine across Scotland.

Welcome to the Creative Partnerships Conference 2025 and to your best year yet.

PROGRAMME

10:30-11:15

Welcome & Industry Pitches

The Welcome & Industry Pitches session at the start of the conference is your chance to discover exciting opportunities, resources, and industry insights from key players supporting creative professionals like you.

In just a few minutes each, our sponsors and partners will share how they can help you thrive—from training and funding to industry connections and career development.

WHO'S PITCHING?

BECTU Vision – A skills hub supporting film and television freelancers by providing training and industry development initiatives to make Scotland's productions safer, fairer, and greener. BECTU Vision is funded by Screen Scotland, BFI, BBC, and Scottish Union Learning, in partnership with BECTU.

NFTS Scotland – delivers a wide range of the National Film and Television School's world-class training courses from their base in Scotland. In addition, they also run the Sean Connery Talent Lab which is currently recruiting for its second cohort.

Musicians' Union – is the UK trade union for all musicians, representing over 35,000 musicians across the UK working in all sectors of the music business. As well as negotiating on behalf of members with all the major employers in the industry, they offer a range of support services for musicians.

Welcome & Industry Pitches

The List – is a multi-award-winning free arts, culture and events magazine that has been helping Glasgow and Edinburgh residents ‘get a life’ since 1985 and offers the UK’s largest events website. After nearly closing its doors in 2020 due to the pandemic, the magazine fully relaunched in March 2022 under the newly formed List Publishing Ltd, thanks to new investment and a successful crowdfunding campaign. It continues to grow its events arm with ListLive, The List Festival Awards and the award-nominated List Festival Party and Hot 100 events.

UP2STNDRD – is a Production House that amplifies emerging talent through innovative media platforms and immersive development programmes. Held in their Recording Studio, their “Be The Standard” writing camp series connects artists across local and international scenes, driving creative collaboration and professional growth.

Money MatiX – MoneyMatiX is a purpose-driven company dedicated to improving people’s financial literacy, inclusion, and well-being. Their personalised money coaching and financial education programmes are designed to help you take control, build better money habits, and create lasting financial stability.

James McCune Smith PhD Scholarship Programme – the James McCune Smith Scholarships fund Black UK domiciled students to undertake PhD research at the University of Glasgow in any research area in which they can offer supervision. The programme provides an enhanced experience through external mentors, placements, leadership training, community-building activities and networking opportunities.

Keeping yourself well: Racial trauma and self-care

with Ellie Muniandy

This workshop will explore how people of colour keep themselves mentally well. We will be exploring the topic of racial trauma, what does it mean, how does it manifest. We will go on to think about what can we do to support ourselves and each other, by taking a critical look at the concept of self care. This workshop will be reflective and discussion based, it is an opportunity to think about and chat with each other.

ELLIE MUNIANDY is an anti-oppression queer POC therapist, trainer and facilitator. They specialise in racial trauma and provide training and facilitation to a range of organisations and offer therapy to people of colour.

YOU'RE A BRAND, OWN IT!

with Serena Piotto

Whether you are aware of it or not, you have a brand, we all do - and it is time to own it.

Being more conscious of your personal brand can help take you forward in your creative journey. In this session, we will look at the basics of branding and how you could be aligning your personal brand with your values and aspirations.

The aim of this session is to get you thinking about your digital footprint, and how your brand is reflecting who you are and where you want to be. How do you want your story to be shaped and how can you be in charge of it?

SERENA PIOTTO is a digital producer and creative freelancer with seven years of experience across branding, events, and broadcast. She is adaptable to any environment and constantly seeks projects that challenge her creativity. As a digital producer, she collaborates with organisations to develop brands and create content. After years in community radio, she now coaches international stations. No matter the size of the project, community and representation are central to everything she does.

Resilience and Sustainable Creative Practices: Breaking Your Creative Ceiling

with Monika Navickaitė

In this workshop, you'll explore how to build the mental resilience and sustainable practices needed to thrive in the ever-evolving creative industries. This session is designed to help you identify and reflect on the internal barriers that may be holding you back as a creative.

Join a conversation focused on navigating and conquering creative fears, setting clear boundaries, and learning when to say yes and when to say no. You'll gain actionable tools for prioritising your goals, aligning your values with your creative practice, and creating an environment—and mindset—that supports your long-term vision.

MONIKA NAVICKAITĖ is an award-winning Lithuanian film writer-director and film critic, actively contributing to the Curatorial, Media, and Communications sectors within the creative industries in Scotland and Lithuania. As Co-director of the ShortScape Film Festival, Monika plays a pivotal role in fostering platforms for independent filmmakers. She also leads Media and Communications at Be United, where she mentors emerging talent and develops impactful communications campaigns that amplify underrepresented voices. With over nine years of experience as a practising creative, Monika brings a deep understanding of resilience and sustainability to her work, offering insights into navigating and thriving in the dynamic creative industries.

Listening with the Body

with Ashanti Harris

Your body is an infinite archive of memory, experience and knowledge. This workshop is an invitation to explore and redefine our relationship to our bodies and the environments we move through.

You will be guided through a series of body awareness exercises, inviting you to tune in to the space around you by thinking about how your body feels as you are moving through it. You are encouraged to follow feeling rather than any kind of style or technique. There is no wrong way to do this. Your responses to each exercise are uniquely yours. We invite you to activate all of your senses, both internal and external, listening with your whole body.

Please wear clothes suitable for movement.

ASHANTI HARRIS is a multidisciplinary artist, researcher and lecturer based in Glasgow, Scotland. Working between dance, performance, facilitation, sound, installation and writing, Ashanti's work disrupts dominant historical narratives and reimagines them from a Caribbean diasporic perspective. Ashanti is the 2024 recipient of the John Florent Stone Fellowship at Edinburgh College of Art; co-founder of Project X – a community interest company platforming dance of the African and Caribbean diaspora in Scotland; and Research Advisor for Body Remedy – a [forming] ecology centring the experiences of black people and people of colour who identify as women and/or non-binary.
